

A caucus is a group of legislators with shared interest in an issue. Caucus members introduce legislation, educate other members of congress, and are public advocates for the issue they champion.

Since coming to Congress in 1996, Congressman Blumenauer has joined many caucuses. He is especially involved with three Caucuses:

- The Congressional Bike Caucus
 - The Public Broadcasting Caucus
 - The Unexploded Ordnance \(UXO\) Caucus
 - The Livable Communities Task Force
